

Mark S. Robertson

LEAN Development Manager

Mark joined MANTEC in 2005 has over 30 years of experience in manufacturing and consulting at various US and international locations. His manufacturing career focused on process improvement and new product development. His training in Lean came from various consulting firms and in the Manufacturing Extension Partnership system while at MANTEC. He has applied these skills at multiple sites in various roles with the DuPont Company and Berg Electronics. His formal education includes an MBA from York College and a Bachelor's degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Memphis. He has specialized training in Stage - Gate for new product development and is a registered Professional Engineer.